Tasks status is displayed incorrectly as being solved

Attach Add a child issue Link issue

Description
When navigating between tasks, the task status pop-up incorrectly displays the task as being solved.

Environment: Staging

Browser: Microsoft Edge

Pre-conditions: Website GO IT must be open in the Browser and no task should be solved.

Steps to reproduce:

1. Navigate between tasks using either the central button or the navigation arrows of the navigation menu located in the site's header.

Actual result: A green pop-up marking the task as solved appears on the upper right side of the page.

Expected result: No pop-up should appear given that the tasks have yet to be solved. Pop-up to appear only once solution is submitted and task is deemed solved.

Priority: Medium

Severity: Minor

The editor window does not expand properly when hiding the theory and tasks section

Attach Add a child issue Link issue

Description
The editor window, the verification menu and the results section are not displayed properly when hiding the theory and tasks section of the website.

Environment: Staging

Browser: Microsoft Edge

Pre-conditions: Website GO IT must be open in the Browser.

Steps to reproduce:

1. Click the Hide theory and tasks button located in the Theory section of the body page.

Actual result: The editor window, the verification menu and the results section are compressed on the left-side of the page.

Expected result:

1. The editor window expands to the width of the page.
2. The verification menu is aligned between the editor window and the results section.
3. The results section expands to the width of the page.

Priority: Low; Severity: Trivial
